

Photos, people, or groups

...the ...

...the ...

...the ...

...the ...

...the ...

...the ...

...the ...

...the ...

...the ...

...the ...

...the ...

...the ...

...the ...

...the ...

...the ...

...the ...

...the ...

[The body of the page is almost entirely obscured by a large black redaction box.]

...the ...

...the ...

...the ...

...the ...

...the ...

...the ...

...the ...

...the ...

...the ...

...the ...

...the ...

...the ...

...the ...

...the ...

...the ...

...the ...

...the ...

...the ...

...the ...

...the ...

...the ...

...the ...

...the ...

...the ...

...the ...

...the ...

...the ...

...the ...

...the ...

...the ...

...the ...

...the ...

...the ...

...the ...

...the ...

the 1990s, the number of people in the UK who are aged 65 and over has increased from 10.5 million to 13.5 million (19.5% of the population).

There is a growing awareness of the need to address the needs of older people, and the Government has set out a strategy for the 21st century in the White Paper on Ageing Better (Department of Health 1999). This strategy is based on the following principles:

- (i) older people should be able to live independently in their own homes;
- (ii) older people should be able to live in their own communities;
- (iii) older people should be able to live in good health;
- (iv) older people should be able to live in good financial circumstances;
- (v) older people should be able to live in good social circumstances.

There is a growing awareness of the need to address the needs of older people, and the Government has set out a strategy for the 21st century in the White Paper on Ageing Better (Department of Health 1999).

This strategy is based on the following principles: (i) older people should be able to live independently in their own homes; (ii) older people should be able to live in their own communities; (iii) older people should be able to live in good health; (iv) older people should be able to live in good financial circumstances; (v) older people should be able to live in good social circumstances.

There is a growing awareness of the need to address the needs of older people, and the Government has set out a strategy for the 21st century in the White Paper on Ageing Better (Department of Health 1999).

This strategy is based on the following principles: (i) older people should be able to live independently in their own homes; (ii) older people should be able to live in their own communities; (iii) older people should be able to live in good health; (iv) older people should be able to live in good financial circumstances; (v) older people should be able to live in good social circumstances.

There is a growing awareness of the need to address the needs of older people, and the Government has set out a strategy for the 21st century in the White Paper on Ageing Better (Department of Health 1999).

This strategy is based on the following principles: (i) older people should be able to live independently in their own homes; (ii) older people should be able to live in their own communities; (iii) older people should be able to live in good health; (iv) older people should be able to live in good financial circumstances; (v) older people should be able to live in good social circumstances.

There is a growing awareness of the need to address the needs of older people, and the Government has set out a strategy for the 21st century in the White Paper on Ageing Better (Department of Health 1999).

This strategy is based on the following principles: (i) older people should be able to live independently in their own homes; (ii) older people should be able to live in their own communities; (iii) older people should be able to live in good health; (iv) older people should be able to live in good financial circumstances; (v) older people should be able to live in good social circumstances.

There is a growing awareness of the need to address the needs of older people, and the Government has set out a strategy for the 21st century in the White Paper on Ageing Better (Department of Health 1999).

This strategy is based on the following principles: (i) older people should be able to live independently in their own homes; (ii) older people should be able to live in their own communities; (iii) older people should be able to live in good health; (iv) older people should be able to live in good financial circumstances; (v) older people should be able to live in good social circumstances.

...the ...

...the ...

...the ...

...the ...

...the ...

...the ...

...the ...

...the ...

...the ...

